

Thomson Reuters Law Prize and Thomson Reuters Vocational Law Prize

Terms and Conditions

The Thomson Reuters Law Prize enables higher education institutions to award their highest achieving law student with the gift of books published by Sweet & Maxwell to the value of £150. The prize is open to all law schools in the UK. You decide what the prize will be awarded for and who the recipient will be. The prize can be awarded to one student or split between two. In return we ask that the prize is publicised as the Thomson Reuters Law Prize.

In addition to the core Thomson Reuters Law Prize we also offer a separate prize for those students undertaking either the LPC or BPTC. This enables those institutions who offer the LPC or BPTC to be able to recognise the achievements of students undertaking the vocational stage of training. The Thomson Reuters Vocational Law Prize is the gift of books to the value of £100 and again can be awarded to one student or split between two. In return we ask that the prize is publicised as the Thomson Reuters Vocational Law Prize.

The winner/s of each prize can make an immediate choice from our current catalogue or alternatively they may wish to spend their prize at a later date. If the winner chooses to delay their choice they have 6 months from the date of the prize letter in which to claim their prize, at the end of which time the prize will expire.

We very much regret that we cannot guarantee to obtain Sweet & Maxwell publications from earlier years, though if they wish to have a publication not included in the current catalogue, every attempt will be made to find it for the winner. Should they wish to redeem books with a higher value than the prize, they are welcome to pay the difference.

If you would like to award either Prize, please register your institution or to check whether your institution is already registered, by emailing sweetandmaxwell.academic@thomsonreuters.com. Please state clearly what prize you are awarding. After receiving the name and address of the winner, we will send you a prize pack containing a certificate, an order form and a copy of the catalogue with details on how they can claim their prize.
