

THOMSON REUTERS®

April 22, 2020

Dear Customer

White Book 2020 – important delivery update

The new edition of the White Book publishes in extraordinary times due to Covid-19. The White Book always prides itself on keeping our customers fully informed, and never has that seemed more important than in the current circumstances. The new edition which published on March 31, 2020, is now in use by our customers including the judiciary.

Forthcoming Covid-19 supplement, publishing beginning of May

Thomson Reuters and the White Book editorial team are committed to keeping subscribers updated with all the legislative and procedural changes that affect the Civil Procedure Rules. The White Book will cover all legislative and procedural Covid-19 changes by way of supplements published as soon as possible after any changes are announced. The first such supplement will be publishing at the beginning of May.

Redirection of delivery address if required

We appreciate that most of our customers will currently be working away from their normal place at work. We will of course be happy to redirect printed publications to another address. If you haven't already done so, please just let us know which address you would like to use. If you are a current subscriber to the printed edition of White Book 2020 we can also provide free access to the eBook version until restrictions on movement are lifted.
